About CO.Train

CO-Train is an online emergency management training system provided by the state of Colorado's Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Management. It offers a variety of training courses and resources related to emergency management for both the public and professionals in the field. Sample course topics include National Incident Management System (NIMS) training, flood response, evacuation planning, hazardous materials, mass fatalities planning, and more. The training aims to enhance capabilities for emergency management and response across all levels of government, community organizations, and private sector partners in Colorado. The program allows users to take self-paced online courses, test their knowledge, and earn certifications. It provides training consistency across the state. Participation in certain CO-Train courses may be required for emergency managers, first responders, and government officials depending on their roles. The training system is used to improve Colorado's emergency preparedness, response, and recovery efforts for disasters and emergencies.
